

Living arrangements in Bega Valley

Most communities are about one-quarter children and three-quarters adults, with about two-thirds of adults living in couples. In Bega Valley in 2006, 25% of the residents at home were dependent children and 75% were adults, of whom two-thirds lived in couples. Of these couples, 16% were unmarried.

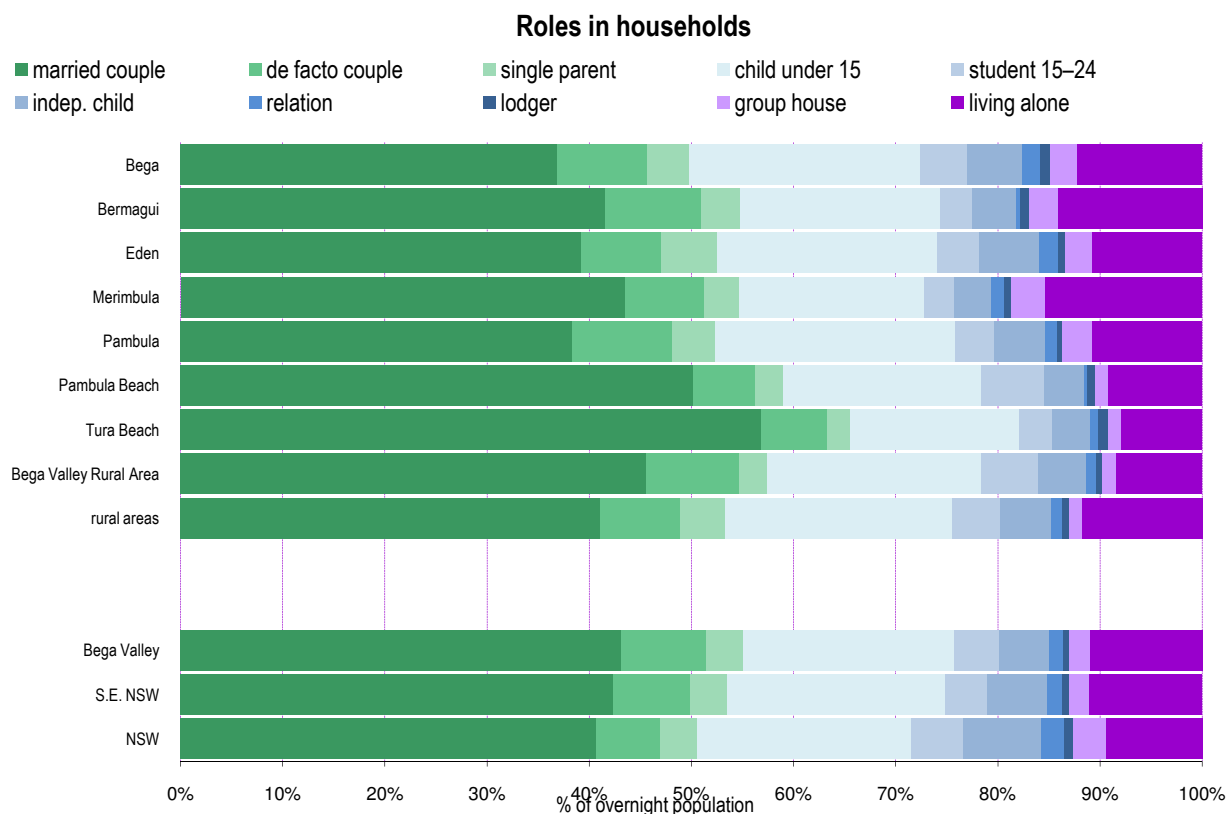

People living in couples, who made up 69% of Bega Valley's adults, were most prevalent in Tura Beach (79% of adults), Pambula Beach (75%) and Bega Valley Rural Area (74%), and less common in Bega (63%), Eden (63%) and Merimbula (65%). Amongst couples, unmarried or de facto couples most commonly lived in Pambula, where they were one-fifth of couples, and in Bega and Bermagui

'Single' adults (those not living in a couple) make up 31% of adults and 23% of the residents. Singles lived in five main ways: as independent children, still with their family but not longer studying (5% of residents), alone (2%), as single parents (4%), in group or shared households (1%), or with another family as relatives or lodgers (1%). Single parents were most prevalent in Eden, rural areas and Bega; people living alone in Merimbula, Pambula and Bermagui.

Single men and women tend to have different living arrangements. Single men are more likely to still be living at home in their twenties; in Bega Valley, there were 2.1 men per woman still living as an independent child (ie with their parents when aged 18 to 24, but not a student), reaching 6.1 in Pambula and 2.5 in Pambula Beach. Single men are also more likely to live as lodgers (here there were 1.8 men per woman), or in group households (here, 1.2 men per woman, with higher concentrations in rural areas at 2.2 and Pambula at 1.8 men per woman).

Women are generally much more likely than men to be living as a single parent. In Bega Valley, there were 3.9 females per male among single parents, with higher proportions in Bega (6.6 women per man) and Pambula (6.6 women per man). There were only female single parents in Pambula Beach. People living alone also tend to be women; here, there were 1.1 females per male among those living alone, with single women most prevalent in Tura Beach (1.6 women per man) and Pambula (1.3 women per man).

Unbalanced numbers of men and women in unmarried couples is the only, albeit weak, indicator in Census data that a place may have gay or lesbian couples (though not equal numbers of both). Generally, there are slightly more women than men counted in couples on Census night because more men are away on trips. Here, there were excess males among unmarried couples in Pambula Beach, with 1.19 men per woman and Merimbula with 1.16 men per woman. Women outnumbered men noticeably in Eden, with 1.21 women per man and Tura Beach with 1.18 women per man.
